A POSTAL SAVINGS BANK PROPOSED

The Board of Trustees of the City services in having the city named as a from our Congressman, Wm. D. Stephens at Washington, tendering his services in having the city named as a postal savings depository. He says: "The Department at Washington is each week designating a number of post offices as Postal Savings Depositories. Thinking your city would like to be named early, I am writing to suggest that you and your postmaster, if deemed advisable, write to the Board of Trustees, Postal Savings System, Washington, D. C., requesting that your city be named as a postal savings depository, etc.

My only interest in this matter is n behalf of the man who needs to save. If my endorsement or other attention her will help it is at your service.

Yours truly,
WM. D. STEPHENS.

THE NEW GLENDALE AVENUE ELECTRIC RAILWAY

The proposition for a electric railway via Glendale avenue from Tropico to Glendale, Verdugo Park, La Crescenta and Sunland to branch from the Pacific Electric at its intersection with the San Fernando road, is the latest candidate for popular favor in business circles. It is certainiy a proposition of unusual merit. It will eliminate the old steam road nuisance and furnish easy and direct access to the famous Sierra Madre resorts to the north of us, besides the elimination of the expense of connection with Los Angeles from Tropico over the old Salt Lake line.

The intersection of Brand boulevard with the San Fernando road will be made a center of activity quite similar to that of Fourth and Brand by the location on the northeast triangle of the proposed Tropico depot and the branching thence of the Glendale avenue electric railway. All of which is by no means an improbable occurrence. The more "centers of activity" we have, the greater the achievements possible.

PAX VOBISCUM

Harold H. Story

"Pax Vobiscum, Peace be with you," —for centuries this has been your greeting. "Peace on earth, good will toward men," for centuries has the glorious angels' song echoed, and re-echoed from your lips. Yet, to use the words of Patrick Henry, you cry, "Peace, Peace—but there is no Peace." You are surrounded by the implements of War. Your mighty armed forces stand as a perpetual challenge to all nations. There are thorns on your olive branches and eagles' blood runs in the veins of your doves. Your enlightened worship of the Prince of Peace is darkened by black clouds from the altars of Mars. The Dogs of War loll in luxury on your very hearthstone.

You have gloried in the symbols of war, and you have envied the position of the soldier. The seat of your patriotism has been the battlefield and the flag you have most loved has been the battleflag. Americans, no longer blind yourselves to facts harsh though they may seem. The glittering sword was made to seek the warm life blood of human beings. The purpose and aim of the soldier is to destroy and desolate. The battle is bloody, animal-like slaughter of men. All ye who pray for victory in wars—think, if war is good enough to pray for, it is good enough to share with the warriors—up close, where steel flashes, bones snap and blood spurts. All ye whose passions thrill with a poetical description of a victorious charge—think, beneath the iron shod hoofs of the cavalry horses, in that charge, are human bodies being mangled and torn; handsome young faces, being trampled out of all likeness to anything human; bones being broken up like bits of wood and skulls being crushed to shapeless masses. All ye whose blood tingles with excitement at the sound of the bugle call and cannon roar—think, with this martial music of battle must come the discordant notes, the shrieks of dying horses and the groans of dying men Hideous and terrible are these thoughts, but such is warfare. General Sherman said: "It is only those who have neither heard a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for more blood, more vengeance, more desolation." Americans, must patriotism be stained with blood? Does not true statesmanship demand that we should be our brother's keeper and not his slayer?

I repeat, that you have envied the position of the soldier. Remember citizens, he who dies for his country must have dashing bravery—but he who lives for his country must have patient, enduring, long suffering courage imbedded deeply in a heartfelt love for his country. He may reap only bitterest criticism as a reward, instead of the honor he deserves. On the other hand, he who dies for his country may be sure that his memory will be preserved in history and his name carved on tablets of stone. Remember also, citizens, he who meets death in his country's name, gives his death, but he who lives a life in his country's name, gives his life, the most that anyone could give.

American's, your destructive battleships cost you twice what the best of your constructive universities cost. Your men in training for destruction cost you twice, and more than twice, what it would cost to train an equal number of men in universities for construction. Billions of dollars you spend in planting the seeds of war, and billions of dollars you pay in pensions to those broken down in the harvest of what you have planted. Meanwhile your merchant marine is in its death throes. Your desert lands are crying for water. Hundreds of children in Chicago and New York are wasting away in hunger. Your famine and disease-stricken sister nations are begging your aid. You must realize that statesmanship is more valuable than battleships, yet you are trusting to fortune for the former and spending your money for the latter. Are you getting full value for your wealth? Is not your economy and statesmanship at fault?

Your forefathers fought and won terrible struggles to gain freedom from a greater nation's imperialistic policies. Since that time your beloved country has gained in wealth and territory. It has increased its power until it stands supreme among the nations. Now, its very armed strength tempts it to adopt those same policies against which your ancestors fought. This nation has already been accused of imperialism. Imperial Macedonia met her doom because of those same policies. Imperial Rome oppressed weaker states and fell, with a crash that vibrated from nation to nation and from tribe to tribe, and the whole earth trembled under the blow. Imperial Spain, once mistress of the seas, lies low because she misused her strength. The mighty Napoleon adopted imperialism and died, a lonely exile on St. Helena's isolated rocks. O Columbia! take heed before it is too late. Better by far be meek than let your own strength tempt you to ruin. Americans, recover from your mad militarism before you are conquered by your own hand. With Kipling, let your fervent prayer ascend,

"Lord, God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."

And yet, abolishing your warlike equipment need not endanger you. The whole world is steady and anxious to follow your leadership in making the Hague Tribunals the supreme courts of the nations. Indeed, all this organization lacks now, is authority, and that is yours, largely, to give. The world at last realizes that "War is Hell," and a relic of barbarism. The great bronze statue, "The Christ of the Andes," at the base of which are inscribed these words:

"Sooner shall these mountains crumble to dust than Argentines and Chileans break the peace to which they have pledged themselves at the feet of Christ the Redeemer."

That monument with those words, should be taken as a lesson by all the world. Would that a "Christ of the Andes" might be erected on every international boundary.

Countrymen, as the beautiful "Stars and Stripes" have stood for the greatest nation on earth, let them stand for universal peace, and brotherhood. As our beloved 'Old Glory" has lead us, triumphantly, in battle, let it lead us, rejoicingly in peace, for, "Peace hath her victories, no less renowned than War." Now that our United States of America have had their baptism in blood and fire, let them enjoy the thrift and intellectual progress that peace alone can bring. Let us change the words of the famous patriotic song, from 'The army and navy forever" to "Peace and Prosperity forever." Let us turn our patriotism to perfecting the faults of our government, and thus truly live for our country. Finally, Americans, in the sublime closing words of the immortal Lincoln's second inaugural address:

"With malice toward none, with charity for all with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphans, to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

HOW TO ENJOY A 1,200-MILE AUTOMOBILE TRIP

Everywhere we asked we were given permission to camp cheerfully, and we did not have a disagreeable experience on the whole trip.

The car behaved beautifullyfi the engine never missing an explision nor misbehaving in any way. One punctue was the sum total of our tire trouble. Lucky, you say? Not altogether; we took care of our tires, using an air gauge, and stopped up every little cut in the casings with plastic cement. The odometer registered nearly 1,200 miles at the finish, and we had averaged a little better than seventeen miles per goilon of gasoline consumed.

If you will but follow our example and not forget the refrigerator basket it will enable you to serve cantaloupe a la mode at noon or night; it will keep your butter and fruit cold and be useful in scores of ways. One need only keep his eye open picturesque spots for noon-day stops. For example, here is one of them on the north shore of Lake Erie, where we had a fine swim as well as a delightful luncheon in pleasant surroundings. Above all things, enter into the spirit of the game; make friends wherever you go; do your full share of the work and do not undertake to cover too much distance every day.—August Columbia.

IMPORTANCE OF IRRIGATION

To Be Discussed At Irrigation Congress

Benjamin A. Fowler, twice chosen president of the National Irrigation Congress and one of the influential factors in development by irrigation in the West, particularly in the Southwest, has traced the results of irrigation farm settlement in the Salt River Valley, Arizona, to the vaults of the banks, the books of commercial houses and into the statistics of industries and railways at Phoenix, his home city, and his compilations show that millions of dollars of improvements and added wealth have been established in the state's capital as a direct outcome of the corresponding growth in the valley surrounding it made possible through the building of the Roosevelt Dam.

Mr. Fowler, who discussed in Chicago recently the work of the congress which meets there next December, and the substantial irrigation improvement in the West, was president of the eighteenth congress at Pueblo, Colo. last year and reelected for another year. He returned here again from Ariznoa to attend a meeting of the Board Governors of the congress.

"The City of Phoenix reflects in itself, I think, the great benefits which come to communities after irrigation is established. In this respect Phoenix has prospered as has Spokane, Boise, Portland, Salt Lake City, Denver, Sacramento and many other communities. As the basis of wealth is traced to the farms in the older states so it is as certainly traced to irrigation developed in the younger, western states whose cities have grown in poulation and industries not solely because of local attractions and advantages, but because of the wealth and increased production due to the watering of the deserts, so-called, and the establishment thereon of thousands of farm homes.

"Recently I sought to prepare reliable data on what such irrigation development meant to my home city which is located in the center of the great Salt River Valley, now irrigated by water impounded by the Roosevelt Dam. Here is one of the garden spots of America and the farm areas made available through the work of the government are rapidly filling up. But I found any accurate summary of the results of such development was extremely difficult; only in a general way could they be traced.

"Primarily we find a rapid increase in population. This has justified the railroads in greatly shortening their lines between Phoenix and Pacific Coast points and the establishment of through mail service between Phoenix and Los Angeles. These improvements, of tremendous value to the city and to the inland Southwest, indicate, I think, both the volume and importance of traffic between the points mentioned.

"The characte of farm development in the Valley is shown by the fact that last month the Salt River Water Users' Association—representative of practically every land owner in the valley—completed a general office, meeting and administration building at Phoenix at a cost of $40,000.

"The El Paso and Southwestern Railway have secured a right of way into Tuscon and, it is believed, plans further extensions to the west. The opening of the new concrete bridge over the Gila River at Florence and the new concrete bridge of the Salt at Phoenix has brought the Salt River Valley and surrounding country into much closer touch with the City of Phoenix.

"Arizona, which owns so much to irrigation improvement, will participate in the deliberations of the next National Irrigation Congress. I look forward to this meeting with confidence that it will be one of the foremost sessions of the organization and irrigationists throughout the entire West have expressed themselves as convinced that the congress will, through the Chicago sessions, attain much and greatly enlarge its already wholesome influence."

HOW ONE FEELS ON A RACING CAR

The driver opens the throttle wide, and no gattling gun in its palmiest days could outdo the modern racer in point of noise. Speech is impossible, with the roar of the wind's contact in our ears and the explosion of the exhaust.

The speed increases and becomes greater and greater, until it seems as though we were flying. The road is but a white streak, the surrounding country like a blur, and one would never have the courage to turn the head. You bend your head against the wind which seems fearful from the velocity you are traveling, and a dull ache begins to manifest itself at the back of the neck. The wind cuts your face like a knife and were it not for the glasses you are wearing it would be impossible to keep the eyes open. The velocity almost takes your breath away, and you set your teeth together and wonder how long the car will keep the road at the present rate of speed.

Then the speed increases until it becomes fearful, the hum and screaming of the rapidly revolving wheels over the ground and the horrible barking of the motor makes you realize quite fully what a wicked brute the modern racing machine really is, and much respect comes into your heart for the man who has the wonderful courage to drive and manage it successfully.—By Mrs. A. Sherman Hitchcock, in August Columbian.

WHITEWASH

Whitewash is one of the best preventives of fire for the inside of a building and liberal credit is alweys allowed manufacturing and other establishments that are well whitewashed. We give below, the United States Government recipe for whitewash, which can be strongly recommended.

Slack one-half bushel of unslacked lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process; strain and add one peck of salt disolved in warm water. Put three pounds of ground rice in boiling water and boil to a thin paste. Disolve one-half pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of clear glue in hot water. Mix these well together and allow the mixture to stand for several days. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle or portable furnace, and when used put it on as hot as possible with a painter's or whitewash brush.

THE COST OF DISEASE

The Outlook has been publishing a series of articles on "Big Battles Against Disease." The fifth of these articles, published May 13, 1911 is on "The Cost of Disease," and presents convincing data for the statement that the cost from deaths amounts to $750,000,000 a year for the United States. California's share of this estimate would be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 annually. The article states: "This is the sum that could be realized by the adoption—and the enforcement of more effective sanitary provisions, and by the intelligent efforts of individual citizens acting in co-operation with the medical profession." As the author says: "It is a sum well worth saving, for every dollar of it represents not only economic waste, but also pain, suffering, and sorrow, all unnecessary."

The other point to which emphasis is specially given is the need for greater encouragement and support of investigations of disease that will defy scientific inquiry and professional skill. In the November and December (1910) numbers of this bulletin extensive articles bearing on the cost of disease in California were published and will be sent to any interested in the problem.

Major-General McClellan is summoned by the Government to take command of the Army of the Potomac. General Rosecrans takes his place in command of the Army of Western Virginia.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, ETC.

The "Wild Man From Borneo" possesses testamentary capacity, if we are to follow the distinction between eccentricity and insanity, drawn in Lee v.. 4 McCord, 183, decided by the South Carolina Supreme Court in 1827. In that case a testator, who left a fortune to the states of Tennessee and South Carolina, to the exclusion of his relatives, who were disinherited so long as "wood grows or water runs," was held to be merely eccentric, and not insanse, though he believed that all women were witches, and had fourteen sound teeth extracted to dislodge spirits of relatives, believed by him to reside in the teeth, and though he wore petticoats, and a blanket, shaved his head to elude the grasp of witches, constantly carried one of his fifteen swords, and removed the tails of his cattle on the theory that they kept themselves poor fighting flies.—The Docket.

OLD IRONSIDES

Boys and girls who are studying the history of our country will be interested in knowing the fate of the frigate "Constitution," generally known as "Old Ironsides."

After Oliver Wendell Holmes had saved the ship from being destroyed because she was deemed unseaworthy, by his thrilling peom, "Old Ironsides," she was rebuilt and continued in service untill 1855 at which time she was laid up at the Porthsmouth Navy Yard and used as a training ship. In 1877, being then ninety years old, she was again partially rebuilt and in 1878 made another trip across the Atlantic, which proved to be the lest. She was used for a while as a barrack ship, and anyone visiting the Charlestown Navy Yard at the present time can see her.

Although there is but little left of the original ship, yet in rebuilding all the parts were made exactly after the pattern of the parts worn out, and even the guns are a duplicate of those she used to carry; but the billet head of beautifully polished wood was in the original vessel.

There has been no intention of establishing a museum on board, but as gifts were received from time to time they were established in the old cabin or along the gun deck. The papers relating to the negotiations which terminated the war with Tripoli, in which "Old Ironsides" took such a leading part, are held in the cabin. There, too, may be seen a pair of old boarding pikes such as might have been sued in the war with Tripoli. A pitcher belonging to a china set owned by the ship's first captain is found on a shelf of the cabin. Also of great interest is an abstract of the ship's log during the cruise along the African coast in 1855, giving the occurrences for every day. In a collection are trophies of the Spanish War, the colors belonging to the cruiser "New York,' which was the flagship of the commander-in-chief of the fleet, and the steering wheel and other things which the cruiser "Olympia" carried through the battle of Manila.—The American Boy.

The Khasia hills, 200 miles north of the Bay of Begal, are the rainiest region in the world, the annual precipitation frequently exceeding 400 inches.

According to a French authority, both Texas and Nevada have deposits of koalin which should enable the Unite dStates to lead the world in keramics.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER CRAIG HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

In turning to one side to pass an approaching team at the elbow in the San Fernando road, at its intersection with Pacific avenue, on the north limits of Tropico, last Monday afternoon. Motorcycle Officer W. J. Craig, in the service of the County, had a narrow escape from a serious accident. In making the turn his machine ran into the thick coating of gravel on the side of the macadam. The impact brought the machine to so sudden a halt as to hurl the rider from his seat and capsize itself. Mr. Craig was stunned for the time and his unconscious condition was the cause of much concern and alarm. Dr. Tholen was summoned and with a few resoratives soon brought the injured man to. He was removed to Hotel Tropico where he passed the night. The morning found him "all right," with the exception of a little stiffness.

The G. A. R. of Tropico and Glendale, together with the Women's Relief Corps, their auxiliary, have arranged to hold their annual picnic at Echo park, Los Angeles, on Friday, August 4th. The day will be spent enjoying speeches and music, the women and the veterans leaving Glendale about 9 o'clock in the morning and returning from Echo park in the afternoon.

The Union high school will open for the fall term on September 11, with a number of new teachers added to the faculty, some of which will have charge of the two new departments, manual training and domestic science which have been added to the curriculum of the school. Examinations will be held on the Friday and Saturday preceding the opening of the school, for the admission of new students, and it is expected that before the close of the year, every seat in the school will be occupied with students.

Roy F. Bancroft, architect, is now located in the Flower block on Brand boulevard.

BIG MEETING

The best attended meeting of the West Glendale Improvement Association ever held since its organization, took place Saturday night in the big tent which has been erected on a vacant lot on West Sixth street, there being about 200 men and women in attendance. Among those who addressed the meeting were H. A. La Grosse, president of the Association, Chas. A. Rudell, Rev. J. H. Henry, and J. C. Shearer, also a few women made short talks. A report was made that Mr. Byron Erkenbrecher had been consulted in regards to compelling the property owners in his Valley View Tract to live up to the building restrictions on the properties that have been sold, and Mr. Erkenbrecher agreed to take the matter up with his attorney. The purpose of the Association is to improve the appearances of West Glendale, both in regards to the looks of streets, and also restrict the putting of cheap houses close to the front of the lots. After ice cream was served the opportunity was given for new members to join, and the secretary, R. W. Hammond, added a number of new names bringing the membership now close to 125.

DEATH OF ALBERT DOW

What came as a shock to his many friends, and most everybody in the valley was a friend, was the news of the death of Albert Dow, of West Seventh street. Although Mr. Dow had not been in the best of health, it was not thought he was to go on such short notice. While the members of the family were having their dinner in an adjoining room, they heard Mr. Dow coughing and in a very few minutes he had passed away, death being due to a hemorrhage. Mr. Dow was one of the pioneer residents of Glendale, having been here for about fifteen years and being well liked by everybody in the valley. Mr. Dow was a native of Massachusetts, but came here from Chicago, being in the hardware business at that place. He was a large land owner of this place, recently selling his home on Kenneth road for $35,000. Only a short time ago he started work on his new home on Orange street which will cost $6500 but is not yet completed.

His many good deeds will live for years to come, as he was very philanthropic, always helping those who needed help and it was not an unusual thing for some family who was a little down to find a large basket of the necessities of life at their door with nothing too indicate where it was from, but as a general thing Albert Dow generally was the donator.

He is survived by a widow, two sons, Albert Dow and Walter Dow and one daughter, Mrs. Harriett Shirk.

Private funeral services were held at his home Monday afternoon. Rev. J. F. Moody, of Alhambra, conducte the funeral services. Interment at Forest Lawn cemetery.—Jewel City Press, August 2.

On August 22 the goovernment will open to entry nearly two hundred thousand acres of Indan lands in Minnesota. Settlers will pay $1.25 an acre.

It is somewhat flattering to our State pride to have California legislation held up by the leading press of the East as an example worthy of imitation.

In planning for the distribution of the 18,000 inches of surplus Owens river water, why not take Sunland, La Crescenta and La Canada—the entire foothill region from Pasadena to San Fernando—into consideration? The Paradise of Southern California is therewith the touch of Mulholland's wand.

Max Tholen, the California Railroad Commission's attorney, has returned from a visit to several of the Eastern states and a study of their railroad legislation for the purpose or posting himself on points for perfecting California law in that line. He says his trip was a most intteresting and instructive one.

At last California has a representation in Congress capable of commanding respect at home as well as abroad. Judge John D. Works is easily the peer of any man in the United States Senate. His proposed measure for meeting the situation in Alaska should be considered and passed up for executive approval befoe the present extra session ceases.

"Total annihiation is impossible. We are the prisoners of an infinity without outlet, wherein nothing perishes, wherein everything is dispersed, but nothing lost. Neither a body (matter) nor a thought (mind) can drop out of the universe, out of time and space. Not an atom of our flesh, not a quiver of our nerves will go where they will cease to be, for there is no place where anything ceases to be." The foregoing quotation from Macterlinck will afford the reader a subject or profound meditation for many a secluded hour. Nothing was or is but ever will be. Disintegration is of constant occurrence, so reintegration in some form or other is just as constant.

The engineers of the Public Service Commission, in their first advisory report respecting the distribution of the 18,000 inches surplus Owens river water, provided for the McClay, Pacoima, Fernando, Mission, Chatsworth, Glendale-Tropico Providencia and Cahuenga district. In their supplemental report which was submitted yesterday, they include the districts that embraces Pasadena, Alhambra, South Pasadena, Bairdstown and all the cities and towns to the southeast corner of the city. It comprises approximately 63,000 acres. To supply this district the water must be diverted from the conduit above San Fernando and carried along the southerly base of the Sierra Madre mountains via La Canada. This is truly a grand conception.

Competitors For a Fifty-Dollar Scholarship
In the Brownsberger Business College of Los Angeles
By the Tropico Inter-urban Sentinel

To the person sending us the highest number of subscribers for the Tropico Inter-urban Sentinel for one year to be accompanied with $1.00 for each subscription, out of an aggregate of 200 or more subscribers, the publisher will give a fifty-dollar scholarship in the Brownsberger Business College of Los Angeles.

Here is a chance to get a valuable prize at the cost of a very little effort. It will be a very asy matter and will take a very little time for a party, say of ten, young persons to get a list that would average twenty subscriptions each. Out of the party the competitor sending in the highest number of subscribers would be the lucky recipient of the prize.

Persons wishing to compete for this scholarship are requested to furnish the Sentinel Office with their names and be placed on the list of comopetitors at once.

It is suggested to competitors that they enlist the services of their friends in getting subscriptions. Every subscription will be counted one vote in his or her favor for the scholarship.

N. C. BURCH,
Publisher Sentinel.

BARACA NOTES

The Baraca class of the Tropico Presbyterian church, elected new officers last Sunday morning. Those elected are as follows:

Dwight Stephenson, president; Harry Marple, vice-president; Harold Story, secretary and press agent; Hurlburt Harrison, treasurer.

The following chairmen were appointed by the newly elected executive committee: Harry Marple, Hustler's Committee; Harry Hayward, Social Committee.

The Baraca and Philathea classes are to give a banquet at the church, Friday evening, August 4th, in honor of Mr. E. S. Ayers, the Baraca class teacher, who has been absent some months. The instalation of officers for both classes will take place at that time. Young people between the ages of sixteen and twenty are cordially invited to be present.

The boys are expecting to do great things during the coming administration. They will start a membership campaign soon. All the young men about town are invite dto attend our weekly class meeting on Sunday mornings at 10 o'clock, in the church.

HAROLD H. STORY.

LOCAL AND OTHERWISE

City Attorney Charles E. Salisbury and Trustee Shelton of Burbank, were callers at the City Hall and office of the Sentinel Monday.

We sell the famous Danish Creamery Butter, made in the Fresno butter district; full weight. Davis Grocery company.

Dr. F. H. Koepke, of Watsonville, Cal., paid a visit to his former home and friends in Tropico on Monday last. He had with him his kodak, equipped for pictures of the many amazing changes seen in and about the old town. The former home of his parents is the Turk place, corner of Park and Glendale.

Twenty miles an hour on a county road is fast enough for any one to travel, except in the direst emergency and except the speeder is inspired with an ambition to tempt Providence for a broken neck.

The petition for the incorporation of San Fernando as a city of the sixth class has been acted upon favorably by the Board of Supervisors. The incorporation election will be held August 14. The proposed city has a population of 1500 and valuation of assessable property amounting to the sum of $500,000. Is therefore, in population and valuation of taxable property, about the same as Tropico. The propoosition to incorporate has little of no serious opposition. San Fernando is destined to be the most important city in the great valley with which it shares its name.

The Normal School Trustees are inclined to select for the site of the new State Normal school building, the twenty-acre tract of land on Montana street, a few blocks north of Echo park, south of Edendale, just off and on the east of the Tropico-Glendale line of the Los Angeles Inter-Urban Railway and north of the Sunset boulevard line. No sightlier or more convenient point can be found within Los Angeles city limits. But $10,000 an acre is too much for it. Divide that figure by two and the quotient would strik the just average.

Mr. Pulliam of Pulliam Undertaking company, returned from his northern trip, via Seattle, on the steamship President Tuesday last.

Danish Creamery Butter, Folger's tea, coffee and spices. beach nut goods. Fresh fruit, vegetables, bakery goods, bacon, hams, etc. Davis Grocery company.

The country has posted warning notices along the highways against a higher rate of speed of automobiles and motorcycles than 20 miles under the penalty of a fine of $50 and fifty days in jail.

Pascal M. Normart left Saturday on his return home to Malaga, Fresno County, Cal., after a brief visit to his brother, Mr. James B. Normart, on 10th street. Mr. Normart is owner of several large and valuable properties near Fresno, he offers for exchange for Tropico and beach property. A rancher in search of a profitable alfalfa ranch would do well to get into communication with with Mr. Normart personally or through the Sentinel Office.

Curbs and sidewalks for San Fernando roads, especially through the business section of the city, should have the attention of the city Board of Trustees as soon as possible.

The opening and widening of Brand boulevard is a slow and tedeous proceeding—made so by the formlaities of the aw that must be observed in prosecuting the condemnation proceeding and collecting the assessment necessary for paying for the land to be taken and expenses of the taking by legal process. At the very earliest it will be March 1, 1912 before the opening and widening can be made.

The Automobile Emergency Service has issued a bulletin showing the condition of the roads throughout Southern California, which has a reference to the San Fernando, Central avenue and Tropico avenue roads as follows: From Los Angeles go out North Broadway to Avenue Twenty, then left on Avenue Twenty and San Fernando road to Tropico, where turn off at new bank building onto Central avenue, north to Glendale and La Ramada, Glendale. Much better, though longer route is Figueroa street to Second street, west on Second to Beaudry avenue; north on Beaudry to Sunset boulevard; left on Sunset to Vermont avenue, East Hollywood; right on Vermont and Tropico avnues to Central avenue to Tropico; thence north to Fourth street, Glendale, and thence east through Glendale City. Fine roads all the way. Roads around Tropico and Glendale all good.

THE BEREAN BIBLE SCHOOL

The Berean Bible School is an institution that fits for the ministry, missions and Sunday school work. It's tuition is free. It opened October 5, 1908, at 254 South Hancock street, East Los Angeles, with Elder M. M. Eshelman foreman of the faculty. Its first year's attendance was 81; the second, 85; third, 91. Six teachers are employed. Students in the mission course have rooms furnished free. All expenses are met by free-will offerings. The growth of the institution has been such as to demand enlarged facilities. These are forthcoming in a commodious new building specialy designed for the purposes of the school, at North Broadway and Gates street at a cost of $15,000. The means for the construction of the building, by contribution of devoted friends, are all in hand, as we are informed by Elder Eshelman.
